SPINSTER DRAFT

Agitation for drafting single women to serve in non-combat jobs in the army threatens to reach the action level, motivated chiefly by counter-agitation to slow down the wholesale induction of pre-Pearl Harbor fathers.

This would be a grave distortion of the selective service principle, insofar as it would establish spinsterhood as the basis of eligibility. While presumably the lottery method would be applied to the group as a whole, its formation on the basis of marital status would be contrary to the selective service principle.

While no one will argue that women should be or can be conscripted regardless of marital status, it can be argued that if women are going to be conscripted at all the basis used should be age, with deferments for those who have family responsibility. There are, after all, many married women without children and with husbands in the armed services who would be just as eligible for duty as, for instance, single women whose marriages were postponed due to the war. When it is further considered that the inevitable effect of a discriminatory conscription law would be to force some single women to get married in order to disqualify themselves, the wisdom of such a proposal is open to further doubt.

VOLUNTARY CONTRIBUTIONS

Sen. Joseph E. Guffey's proposal of a federal lottery to raise an important part of the administration's tax quota of $10,500,000,000, reduced by the house to a scant $2,000,000,000, carries with it the interesting declaration that a lottery would encourage "voluntary contributions to aid in the prosecution of the war."

Sen. Guffey does not mention that the contributions would be made in large part by the poorer members of the population—the minority that traditionally yields to the temptation to gamble for a chance to live on easy street. While the revenue possibilities of a federal lottery are extremely great, the question is not one of revenue but of government ethics. As the late Henry T. Rainey said when he was speaker of the house and a lottery bill was being pushed as a measure for raising money during the depression, "The country has not yet been reduced to the extreme of accepting such a revenue measure."

In other words, any government which lacks the courage to levy taxes directly in accordance with the benefits received from participation in this democracy gains nothing by recourse to the profits from a national gambling enterprise but its own admission that it has lost the power to collect what is needed to underwrite its own expenses. A federal lottery is essentially a scheme to finance government out of the pockets of the gambling minority, levying on their weakness for money that should be levied against every citizen according to his ability to pay.

DEFENSIVE AIR POWER

The conception of offensive air power now is firmly established. Vast fleets of heavy bombers sweeping over enemy targets no longer exist only in the imagination. They have been in operation. Millions of Europeans know about offensive air power as a fact, not a theory.

The conception of defensive air power still is not clear, despite British success in meeting the German bombing attacks of 1940-41. It is not well understood that German bombers at that time met their match in British fighters. At least it is not understood well enough to suggest that Germany, dealing with the better bombers in use by Great Britain and the United States, might have similar success in its attempt to develop an adequate defense against air power. The toll now being taken of British night raiders, previously considered relatively immune from attacks by fighters, and the necessity of revising the tactics of United States daylight raiders affirm an important degree of success.

It is a fixed law of war that every new weapon produces a counter-weapon. The dreadnaught produced the submarine. The submarine produced the destroyer. Armor-piercing shells produced armor too thick to pierce, which produced better shells, which produced better armor. The machinegun produced the tank, and the tank produced the tank destroyer and the portable rocket gun for destroying both of them. To imagine that air power alone of all the weapons of war cannot be offset by defenses is foolish. Germany may not have the answer, but it is far from helpless. It has come a long way from the stage when its destruction from the air seemed to wait only on Allied ability to accumulate enough planes to do the job.

NEWS IS WHEN IT HAPPENS

Newspaper readers and radio listeners aren't concerned with the technique of news releases, except on the occasions when something obviously goes haywire. Something obviously went haywire on the handling of news releases about the Cairo and Teheran conferences. In both cases while newspapers were holding official announcements for release, the news was distributed by unofficial sources. While it has not been unusual during the war for strategists in the war of nerves to put out "feilers" in advance of official announcements, in this case the unofficial news turned out to be the straight story.

Two facts about news, which may seem to contradict each other, emerge from the discussion started by the mixup. First, news is created when something happens. Second, news is not information until it has been processed and conveyed to the public. The conferences were news the instant they convened. But news does not become public information until it has been processed and relayed to the public, a complex operation of radio, telegraphy, editing, composition, mechanical procedures and, finally, public comprehension of the event. In the case of the conferences, the operation also included numerous government officials who had various orders.

Objectively, what happened was that this operation got out of hand. The technique went haywire. The points of contact were too far-flung. Too many government authorities had done too much planning; they outwitted themselves. It was not, on the whole, much of a performance—and the newspapers and radio, which were left holding the bag, are hoping for something better in the future. It couldn't very well be much worse.

THE STARS SAY:

For Wednesday, December 8

THE STELLAR influences promise a moderately successful and active state of affairs. The routine or customary trend of events may be stepped up by some clever, original and effective thinking or intuitions, coming from sudden flashes or peculiar hunches at times of doubt. Draw on inner resources, and proceed with calm and conviction rather than explosive or erratic attempts to force issues. Travel, law, professional activities as well as social and domestic interests may flourish.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a pleasant and progressive year in which debatable or critical issues may be brought to a gratifying climax by keen insight, original thinking or even intuitions or hunches beyond the realm of logic and reason. Sudden insight or peculiar urges, may save a perplexing situation if calmly and confidently enforced and erratic or quixotic impulses held in restraint. Business, finance, possessions, travel, and litigation should flourish and the domestic and social life be pleasant and quite active.

A child born on this day while having much talent and versatility, yet may enjoy its highest successes by originality, ingenuity, and the inspiration of subtle or peculiar inner urges, with singular vision or penetration.

It is absolutely essential, if we are to preserve a free society, that the people shall not be made dependent for their employment on the investments of either big government or big business.—Alvin H. Hansen, federal reserve economist.

The people are black and dirty. They've been unable to change clothes and had no water for bathing. Men have been unable to shave and are growing beards.—Traveler from Berlin.

Housing conditions in Germany make lodging foreign workers in houses impossible. A good proportion of German workers also are living in camps.—Amsterdam newspaper.

There is no actual shortage of manpower. Our problem is one of poor allocation and distribution, as well as improper allocation.—Victor Reuther, UAW official.

The American Federation of Labor will oppose with all its power any attempt to enslave the workers of Germany or any other country when victory is won.—William Green.

Washington Round-up

News and Views, Briefly On What's Going On In Capital

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—Today—the by the calendar—is the second anniversary of Pearl Harbor, which, in the words of President Roosevelt, "needs no reminder." As far as Washington is concerned—and generally the rest of the country—it's just another day nearer Christmas and another workaday nearer the winning of the war.

But in those two years Washington has grown and its growth has been felt throughout the nation—its controls and regulations sometimes criticized as faulty and cumbersome but defended by their promulgators as designed to give the United States a grip on its fighting resources and its war production.

The Army has grown from 1,500,000 to five times that size with an airforce of nearly two and a half million. The Navy, Marine corps and Coast guard number nearly 3,000,000 and for every ship in the fleet before Pearl Harbor, there now are two.

GOOD WILL PEACE

It is the belief of Senator Hill (D-Ala.) the concord reached by President Roosevelt, Prime Minister Churchill and Marshal Stalin will result before long in establishment of an international agency to handle the intricacies of postwar peace and security. He expressed opinion it will provide for active co-operation by large and small nations toward a goodwill peace. Other legislators point to much work to be done now on some of the problems that appear to have been left unsettled at Teheran.

SUBSIDIES

And Congress today is entwined in one of the problems of critical interest to both the present and future economy of the United States, whether in war or in peace—the subsidy issue. Farm bloc spokesmen now urge establishment of a food stamp plan to aid low income families which would be hardest hit by rising prices if the outlawing of subsidies should bring an increase in prices.

NO EPIDEMIC

From the U. S. Public Health service comes the reassurance that a rising rate of influenza cases carries no overtones of 1918 when, at the close of the first World War more than 20,000,000 died of the flu. A spokesman describes the current rise as merely a normal seasonal increase.

Attend State Meetings

LISBON, Dec. 7.—County Auditor L. J. Vorndran is attending a meeting of the board of tax appeals in Columbus. He also will attend the state convention of auditors Tuesday through Thursday. Deputy John Litty and County Sealer Frank T. Irwin accompanied the auditor to Columbus. Irwin will attend the state meeting of county sealers.

Extra Food Rations Not Needed For Ill

By LOGAN GLENDENING, M. D.
AN OLD doctor friend of mine who thought he had retired and went to California in 1936 has been called back into active service, and is acting, without pay, of course, as medical adviser to his local food rationing board. He has just written me of some of his trials and his sense of being imposed on by applicants who come with certificates from their doctors stating that the patient must have more food or more of a different kind of food.

"Doctors," he writes, "react differently. They go from an attitude of complete indifference to a willingness to give any patient anything he asks for, usually on the patient's own judgment."

A request came in for 600 points of processed foods (canned goods) for diverticulitis (a condition of irritation of the lower bowel). One wonders why the patient can not puree her own vegetables in her own kitchen. Laziness or ignorance?

Unnecessary Requests
One can understand the request of a diabetic for more meat, but most of the requests are for canned fruits and fruit juices. Why should a diabetic need fruit juice?

There were 47 requests for more meat for diabetes and 4 for hyperinsulinism (which is just the opposite of diabetes). True extra meat is good for hyperinsulinism, but it is a very rare disease. There are probably not more than 200 cases in the United States, and how could 4 appear in a community of 250,000 population?

Some of the requests are: For "thyroid condition"—extra pineapple juice, tomato juice, grapefruit juice, apple juice, grape juice. (This is just nonsense. None of these things are good for any "thyroid condition"). For "chronic arthritis"—1 gallon of pineapple juice a week—(again nonsense).

For colitis—per week 1 can peaches, 1 can pears, 2 cans fruit cocktail, 4 cans condensed soup—(the peaches and the pears are positively bad for colitis).

Unpatriotic Practice
"But it is allergy that caps the climax," writes my friend. "If one were to take seriously the claims of the patients as to what they couldn't eat, one would despair of the survival of the human race. Here again it would seem that only a diet of canned fruit juices would keep them alive. And the doctors sign the certificates!"

My own household has lived on rationing since it began and I can say that any person with any kind of food allergy can get what he or she needs on the ordinary ration points.

The situation reminds me of the old days of prohibition when a doctor would sign a prescription for whiskey for anybody at $3 a head. How many invalids really need whiskey? Plenty of people like it, but nobody needs it.

It is all unfair and unpatriotic. I cannot think of any disease condition that requires food that can not be procured in any part of the United States on ordinary rationing.

"THAT KEITH WOMAN"

by PHYLLIS MOORE GALLAGHER

SYNOPSIS

Letty Randolph, society reporter, persuaded distraught Pamela Keith to cancel her daughter Sandra's party, scheduled for that afternoon. "That Keith woman," as Letty's nationally in the news. At 19, or elopement with Wayne Courtney, young medical student, was promptly annulled by her parents. In South America, she met Richard Keith, who did not know his wife, Gladys Newcomb Keith, so he could marry Pamela. Richard was killed in an automobile accident shortly after their daughter Sandra's birth. Now, twenty years later, after numerous romantic interludes, Pamela was engaged to likeable Luke Cramer—though everyone had expected he would marry Gladys Richard Keith's wife. Letty, enroute to Sandra's party, took a short cut through the edge of the Keith mansion, which adjoined her hotel. She observed the stark fear in Pam's eyes as she welcomed her guests, while Sandra seemed grimly angry, especially when she greeted Victor Corliss, with whom she was in love. Letty was thrilled when Countess Fanella Castigena presented handsome Peter Gibson, but she bristled when he told her he had crashed the party. Later, at a small dinner party, Letty saw that Pam surrounded herself with the most antagonistic people. They were: Elsie Eustace and her husband, Marvin, whose name had been linked romantically with Pam's; Dr. Wayne Courtney, her first husband, recently returned to Washington after fifteen years abroad; Countess Castigena, whose biography had painted Pam in black strokes; supercilious Earle Pines; and Gladys Newcomb, from whom Pam had annexed two men. Letty noticed Reginald, the Keith butler, strangely eyeing Gladys. Sandra had gone on to the club with her deb friends. Pam's frightened manner clung to her, even after Luke Cramer phoned from Philadelphia. Gladys directed a malevolent look at her hostess as Pam explained that Luke was ill. Letty, anxious to write her story of Sandra's debut, left shortly before ten o'clock. As she neared the opening in the hedge, she saw a shadowed figure creeping toward the rear of Pam's house. She decides to investigate. Letty is describing that risky enterprise.

CHAPTER EIGHT

After what seemed an aeon, the shadow moved out from behind the trees, cut silently across the lawn, and disappeared around the west corner of the house where the library's French doors open on a patio.

I didn't sail around the west wing neck stuck out a mile. Having a smidgen of sense left, I waited, counting up to a shaky ten. Then, pressing close to the limestone wall, I inched up to the corner, finally reached it, my heart pounding so hard it ached. And all I can remember of the next moment, all that came to my mind, was a vast darkness that seemed to swing down, bodiless, from above me. Untrue as a nightmare too were the hard, swinging arms that clasped me around the waist so that no breath was left in my body. Only one thing was perfectly clear: my teeth sank into the cords of a man's neck, and then, with a snarl of pain, those arms threw me headlong onto the grass.

When finally I climbed dazedly to my feet, the figure was gone. I ran then, my mind senseless with horror, my body aware with terror. The needles of dwarf pines caught at my black net, my high heels turned over. I stumbled, fell, got up and stumbled on. I was out of breath, torn, disheveled and wild-eyed with fright when I reached the hotel and burst through the door at the end of A-Wing. I finally shot through the door of our first floor suite, and Mother and Dad were instantly on the scene.

"Some prowler," concluded Dad furiously when I'd finished my breathless explanation. "Good heavens, Letty! What made you follow that scoundrel anyway?"

"I don't know," I stammered. "There's something wrong down at that house tonight. I-I could feel it all—during dinner. Sitting there in my chair was I-perching on a dynamite keg I-listening to the fuse c-crackling!"

"Oh, nonsense," soothed Mother sensibly. "Come on, child, get your clothes off and climb into bed. I'll fix you a hot toddy."

"Hot toddy, yes," said I. "Bed, no. I've a story to do."

I wrote up the debut story and sent it to the paper by messenger. And Mother had a couple of champagne fits when I said I was going back to Pamela's party. Dad got me by the scruff of the neck and the well, he tried to frog-walk me to bed.

"Lay off, parents," I pleaded. "I've got to go back. I want to make it before Pamela barges off to Philadelphia. Luke Cramer's sick and she's going up to hover over him. Anyway, I left my evening bag over there. Folding money's in it, not to mention my keys, my driver's license, lipstick, compact and what-have-you."

I must have argued ten minutes. I didn't really want to go back to the party for the party's sake—it was probably dead and embalmed at this point anyway. But I did want to talk with Countess Fanella Castigena. About Peter Gibson. Tomorrow wouldn't do just as well. I'd sleep a lot better tonight I knew, if Fanella told me Peter had no wife and therefore no seven ex-ceptions.

"Well, all right," Mother finally agreed. "But take a taxi. There are a million places in back of this hotel and yes, on the grounds of Mrs. Keith's estate, where you could be murdered and no one would know a thing about it until someone stumbled over your body."

"Cheerful thought," I said. "But no one would want to murder me." I added that blithely, gayly, ignorant that someone very shortly would try to—and would almost succeed.

Then Mother remarked, "I read once of a man who murdered every red headed girl he met."

"And wasn't he a dope to murder 'em!" I laughed. "Well...maybe they were freckled!"

"Letitia Randolph!"

"That's my name, all right," said I. "For the time being, anyway."

I was thinking: Letitia Gibson. Mrs. Peter Gibson. Letitia Randolph Gibson. I kept rolling those enchanted combinations over my tongue as I slipped out of my ruined black net, climbed into a romantic fuchsia satin job, and threw my cape around me. I took the same route I had taken earlier in the evening to Pamela's, swinging along cheerfully in the moonlight, thinking more about Peter Gibson than about that horrible feeling of tragedy that had clung to Pam's dinner party earlier.

The Charlton-Arms, where I live with my parents, stands on one of the highest hills in the city and, pausing a moment beside the tennis courts I could see the tall spire of the Washington Monument, taut among the clouds, the brilliantly illuminated white dome of the Capitol, and the lights of the city giving the night a glittering belt of gold sequins. I thought a little about Nazi fliers who might come over here soon with their Stukas and bombs and filthy destruction. I walked on, more slowly...

All at once, I was standing perfectly still in that little opening in the boxed hedge, the palm of one hand over my mouth to stifle the screams that were rising up in my throat.

Even in the wan light of the moon I knew it was Pamela Keith—that small, crumpled figure lying there with both slender, jew-

Pacific Islands Is Book Club's Meeting Theme

South Pacific islands was the program theme when Book club members met yesterday afternoon at the library assembly room with Mrs. A. H. Schropp, president, in charge.

Mrs. Phill Chancellor spoke on the "Hawaiian Islands" and told of the congenial characteristics of the inhabitants which is attributed to the pleasant climate.

Mrs. W. Edmund Peters spoke on "Facts About the Philippines" and told of her trip to those islands in 1930.

Music on the program included vocal selections, "Bon Jour Ma Belle Good Day" and "Brahm's Lullaby" by Miss Hilda Franke, accompanied by Mrs. E. E. Dyball.

A Christmas tea will feature the next meeting Dec. 20, in charge of Mrs. W. D. King, Mrs. L. E. Beery and Mrs. J. C. Pottorf. Donations for the children at the Fairmount home will be brought to the meeting.

Musical Culture Club Is Entertained

Miss Mary Beth King was hostess to members of the Musical Culture club last evening at her home on E. Sixth st.

The program, which was opened with the singing of the national anthem, included a piano solo, "Poem" (Fibich) by Miss Velma C. Neill; a flute solo, "Autumn—seasons suite" (La Monaca); trombone solo, "Selections of Stephen Foster," arranged by Pearson, by Miss King.

Refreshments were served by the hostess, assisted by Miss Jane Sprout.

The next meeting will be a Christmas party in two weeks at the home of William Byers on E. State st. Members are requested to bring a gift for the Fairmount Children's home.

"Mr. and Mrs." Club Is Entertained

Mr. and Mrs. Glen Couchie entertained members of the "Mr. and Mrs." club Saturday evening at their home on S. Union ave.

Prizes in "500" were awarded to Mrs. Paul Balsley, Harold Close and Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Everhart.

The next meeting will be held in two weeks at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Hart on N. Lundy ave. A Christmas gift exchange will be held.

Birthday Dinner

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Abrams entertained at a dinner last evening at their home on Vine ave. Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. Nevin Halverstadt and daughter, Joyce Ann, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Herron. The affair was in honor of the first birthday of Joyce Ann.

Schultz-Papic Vows Are Exchanged

The marriage of Dorothy Schultz and Joseph Papic, son of Mrs. Petra Papic, 253 Penn ave., was solemnized Saturday evening at the Christian church with Rev. C. F. Evans officiating in the ceremony, which was performed before a candle-lit altar banked with palms.

Preceding the ceremony Mrs. Ruth Berry entertained with organ selections, which included "Because" and "O' Promise Me".

The bride wore a dressmaker beige suit with brown accessories and a corsage of brown and yellow pompons mingled with stevia.

Mrs. Anna Blender, sister of the groom, as her maid of honor, wore a gold dress with green accessories and a corsage of yellow pompons.

John Blender, brother-in-law of the groom, served as best man.

Following the ceremony a dinner was served at the Papic home to members of the bridal party. Mrs. Papic received several lovely gifts.

Mrs. Papic is from the Ohio State Sailors and Soldiers Orphans home at Xenia and was formerly employed by the Kresge Co.

They will make their home in Salem for the present.

Games were played with prizes going to Mrs. Gilbert Everhart, Mrs. Thomas Snyder and Mrs. Josephine Kaercher.

Lunch was served by the hostess with colors in keeping with the Christmas theme.

Names were drawn for a Christmas exchange to be held at the next meeting Dec. 23 at the home of Mrs. Purn Siding on S. Union ave.

Guild Will Meet At Taylor Home

Mrs. John Taylor will be hostess to members of the Harriet Watt guild of the Episcopal church at 7:30 p. m. Wednesday at her home on S. Lincoln ave. A gift exchange will feature the meeting.

Liquor Stores Might Try Punching Customer Also

COLUMBUS, Dec. 7.—A punch in time may help distribute the state's liquor more evenly.

Discovering that some registrants were removing the stamped record of a liquor purchase from ration cards and reusing them in the same ration period, Liquor Director Don A. Fisher ordered state retail stores to punch as well as stamp the cards.

"Registrants would cover their ration cards with a thin coating of paraffine before presenting them for stamping," Fisher explained, "and then scrape the film off with a knife, removing the record. In this way they could present the card again and again in the same period."

Commander of Salvation Army Will Retire Jan. 1

NEW YORK, Dec. 7.—Commissioner Edward J. Parker, 74-year-old national commander of the Salvation army, will retire at the end of the year, it was announced today.

He has served the organization 58 years—longer than any other officer in the 97 countries and colonies where the Salvation Army works.

A successor has not yet been appointed.

Natural Gas in your home.

Post-war story

Right now, if you're not using Gas heat, we couldn't serve you if we wanted to, nor could you buy heating equipment. The war comes first with all of us. But after victory comes... then, as restrictions are lifted, you'll find yourself able to enjoy to the fullest the many advantages of clean, low-cost, automatic Gas heating. One forward step today would be to insulate and storm-window your home so that it will use less fuel. That will save fuel now and give you many advantages later.

here's how to do it:

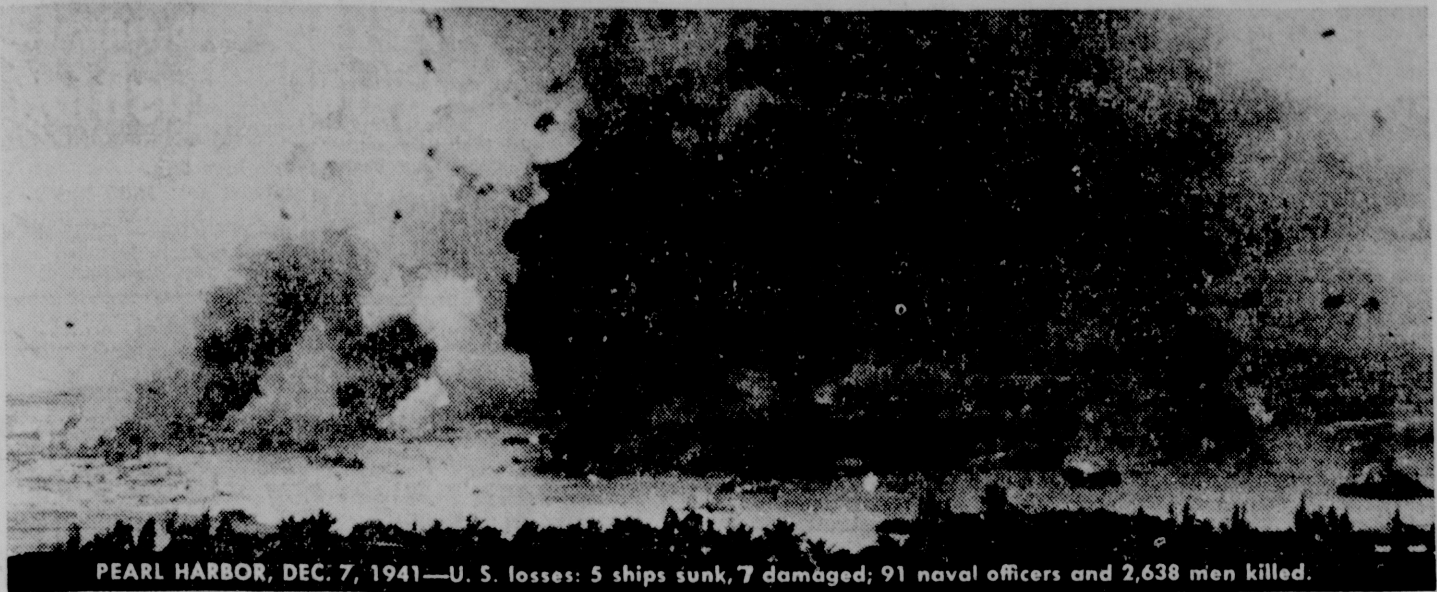

- ✓ Winter-condition your home through insulation, storm sash, weatherstripping and caulking.
 - ✓ Don't waste Gas by washing dishes or hands in hot running water.
 - ✓ Set thermostat properly to avoid excessive room temperatures.
 - ✓ Close off rooms you do not use, close bedroom doors at night if windows are open, see that fireplace dampers are closed.
 - ✓ Eliminate the use of Gas to supplement other fuels.
 - ✓ Check your heating plant, replace or clean filters, insulate your water heater.
 - ✓ Discontinue the use of your kitchen range for heating.
 - ✓ Learn to cook with low flame in small amounts of water to save Gas and vitamins.
- Industrial and commercial users will find their gas company willing and helpful in working out conservation measures.

TWO YEARS of WAR

It is two years since Japan's sneak attack on Pearl Harbor plunged America into war. Out of those dark days of defeat which followed in the early months of 1942, we have emerged to take the offensive with our Allies on every battle-front around the world. Thanks to our fighting men—and our heroic dead—who have carried the battle to the enemy by land, by sea, and by air, our outlook for victory is bright and shining and our hopes for peace not far distant.

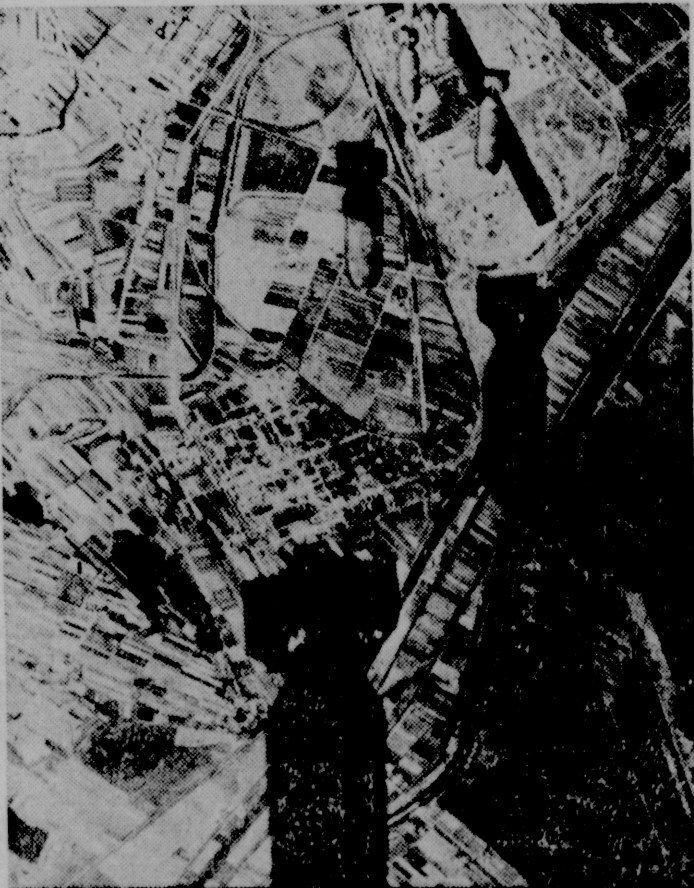

PEARL HARBOR, DEC. 7, 1941—U. S. losses: 5 ships sunk, 7 damaged; 91 naval officers and 2,638 men killed.

NAVAL SUPREMACY—American battleships and aircraft carrier down 65 Jap planes in battle off Santa Cruz, October, 1942.

GUADALCANAL—U. S. Marines move up over territory won from the Japs in hard fighting.

DEATH FROM SKIES—American bombs smash Axis targets.

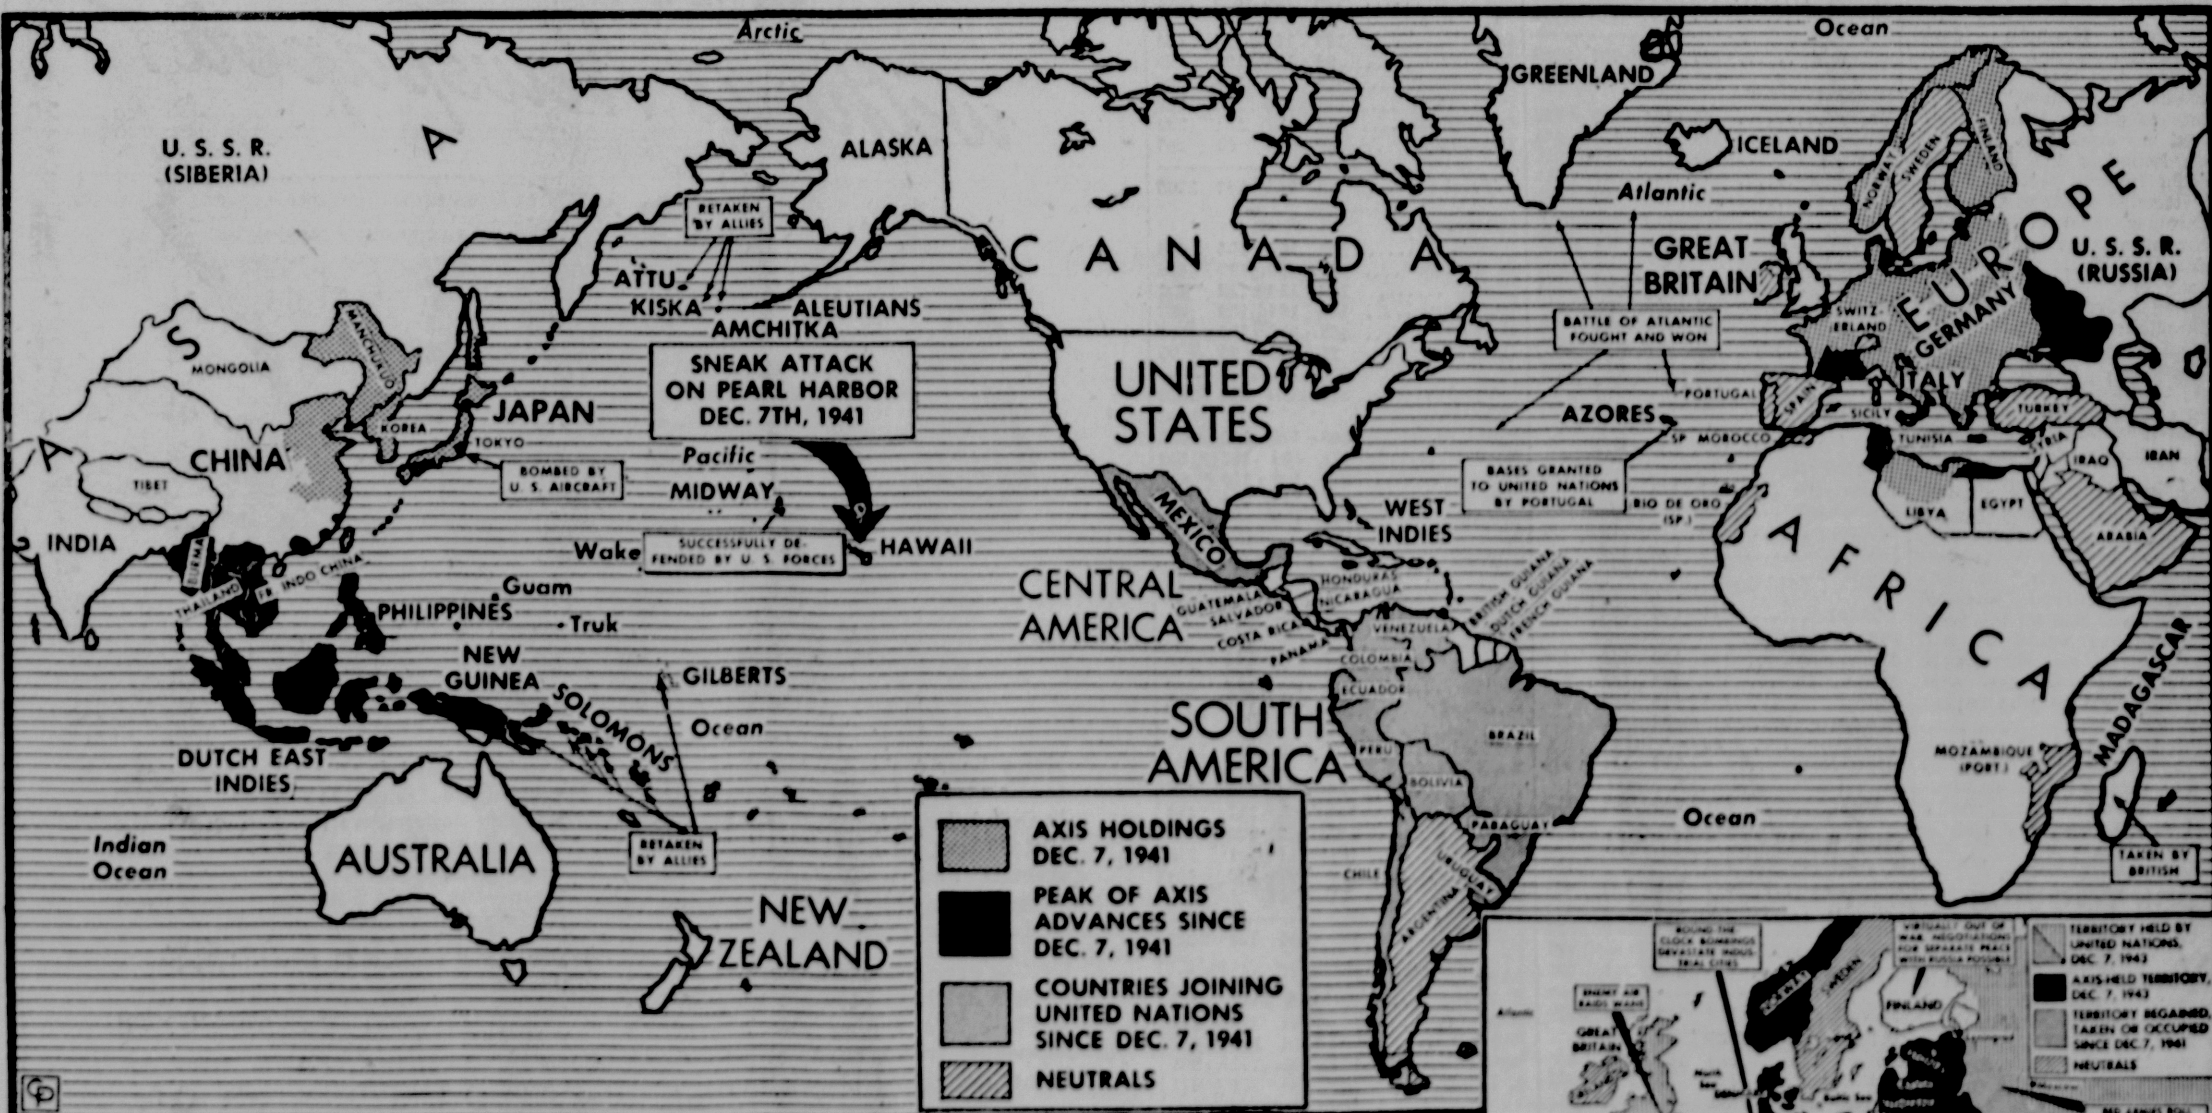

INVASION AND VICTORY—Above, U. S. troops wade ashore in Sicily to fight Nazi and Italian; below, happy Sicilians turn out to welcome the victorious Allied Army.

SUBMARINE WAR—Nazi U boat is hit in the Atlantic.

ON EVERY FRONT today the outlook is desperately grim for the enemy and filled with promise of victory for America and her Allies. Those maps show how the Axis has been gradually pushed back and territory regained in Allied offensives since Dec. 7, 1941. On the long road to Tokyo in the Pacific theater of war, we now hold all of the long-fought-for islands in the Solomons; the important islands in the Gilbert group including Tarawa and Makin, Japan's "front door" defenses; almost one-third of New Guinea, including what were once Japan's largest bases; and Attu and Kiska in the Aleutians. Hitler's "Fortress Europe," shown in inset, is virtually encircled with the Allies striking death blows on all sides. Germany has lost all of her holdings in Africa and a part of the territory she conquered as a result of her war on Russia. Italy, her one-time ally, is now a battleground with the Allies slowly pushing forward from the entire southern half which they now hold. From England, wave after wave of American and R. A. F. bombing planes are carrying out devastating and almost constant raids on industrial cities and enemy military installations. (International)

Strength Of Ohio State's Basketball Quintet Is Unknown

BUCKEYES TO OPEN SEASON SATURDAY AGAINST DENISON

Coach Olsen's Inexperienced Boys Have Never Played Collegiate Game

By EDWIN B. GREENWALD
COLUMBUS, Dec. 7.—Ohio State university's basketball team, which launches its season Saturday night against Denison, will be made up of five non-military boys who never played a game of collegiate ball.

It goes, then, without saying that Coach Harold G. Olsen was not too optimistic today in a discourse on the season ahead.

Here's the first string team: Forwards—Don Grate of Greenfield, 18-year-old 4-F, stands six feet two; Jim Wells of Middletown, 17, and stands six feet.

Guards—Bob Bowen of Martins Ferry, 18-year-old pre-medical student, six feet one-fourth inch; Paul Huston of Xenia, 18-year-old 4-F, six feet three.

Center—Arnold Risen of Williamstown, Ky., 18-year-old 4-F, six feet eight and one-half inches. "I'd feel safer saying those boys would make a fine team a year from now than to say they'll be a good team now," Olsen said. "Maybe they'll surprise me. I hope they do."

Boasts Naval Talent
Denison, loaded with naval talent, very well may whip the Buckeyes. And Kentucky, coming up next Monday, never is a soft touch. Then the boys will rest until Jan. 1 when they start the hard grind. In a period of one month they'll play 12 conference games.

There's other talent than the five aforementioned. Rodney Caudill, a Middletown youth who went to Miami university at Oxford last year, is man No. 6. "He's always in on the scoring," Olsen said. Caudill can go either at guard or forward. Other bright lights are Gene Clark of Columbus at guard or forward, Jack Dugger of Canton at center, Bill Clifton of Cleveland Heights at guard, Jack Hammet of Mansfield at forward.

Besides the Denison and Kentucky games, both to be played here, Ohio State's schedule is:

Jan. 1, Great Lakes at Cleveland; Jan. 8, Pittsburgh here; Jan. 14 and 15, Indiana here; Jan. 21, Chicago there; Jan. 22, Northwestern there; Jan. 28 and 29, Michigan there; Feb. 4 and 5, Purdue here; Feb. 11 and 12, Iowa here; Feb. 18 and 19, Illinois there.

Massillon, Toledo Coaches Each Think His Team Is Best

TOLEDO, Dec. 7.—Two of Ohio's strongest high school football teams—Toledo Waite and Massillon—are building up a nice little wartime argument for post-war settlement.

Waite Coach Kenneth (Jack) Mollenkopf is surprised that Massillon claims the state championship when "I believe Waite is every bit as good a team."

He told a downtown coaches' luncheon honoring his undefeated and untied Indians yesterday that he had attended a banquet at Massillon recently "and much to my astonishment a large banner reading 'Massillon—State Champions' caught my eye."

"We tried every way possible to book Massillon at the start of the season and were turned down."

At Massillon, Coach Ellwood Kammer commented "We claimed the state championship because we were undefeated, but if Waite wants to claim it, they're welcome to do so."

He said Waite's bid for a game this year had been rejected because of wartime travel restrictions.

"In 1941 and 1942, the Waite-Massillon game drew poorly," he continued. "We naturally assumed that with the war still on this year, Toledo attendance would be still worse and so we decided not to play them. If the war's over next year, however, we'll be glad to play Waite again."

Mollenkopf declared "I am not boasting but I believe Waite is every bit as good a team as Massillon after seeing it play. As a matter of fact I think our club is faster."

REARDON TO GUIDE PHILLY FARM SYSTEM

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 7.—Joseph F. Reardon, 38-year-old general manager of the Scranton, Pa., baseball club of the Eastern league became head of the farm system of the Philadelphia Phillies today. Herb Pennock announced as his first official act since he was selected general manager of the Phillies.

The new head of the Phillies' farm system is known as the "Encyclopedia of Baseball." He is said to know more about the players than they know about themselves and has the answers to all the intricate business problems of baseball at his fingertips. His contract calls for $12,500 a year and is said to run for five years.

A native of Scranton, Reardon has been both a player and umpire in semi-professional circles.

PHILADELPHIA—Holman Williams, 1974, Chicago, outpointed Steve Belloise, 1964, New York, 10, Julie Kogon, 1904, New Haven, outpointed Dusty Brown, 136, Wilmington, Del. 10.

A new league—the Commercial league—went into action for the first time last night on the Bowling Center alleys.

This league of eight teams is headed by Charles Huppely as president, with Phil Stevens as secretary. It is to be a handicap league, with the point method of scoring. Johnny Brantch of the Eagles took the spotlight in the American league matches on the Masonic alleys last night when he posted a 630 series on games of 209, 244, 177. His total is second high in the league for the season. Andy Arnold, his teammate, holds top honors with 634 and Brad Akens is third with 625.

GERMANS FACE

ranes and Britain is in the neighborhood of 2,000,000 to 3,000,000 and growing steadily.

Because of the weight, fierceness and skill of the Red army, the German high command seems committed to maintaining about two-thirds of its force on the eastern front. Stalin on Nov. 6 said 207 German divisions faced the Russians.

About 40 Nazi divisions are known to be in France and the low countries, 12 in Norway, seven in Finland, 25 in Italy and 23 in the Balkans and Greece—leaving virtually no strategic reserve.

Best estimates here are that the German air force can present a front line strength of no more than 1,200 to 1,500 bombers and 2,500 to 3,000 fighters.

Here again Russia alone may be able to match all the German power.

Air Fleets are Great

The RAF fleet of heavy bombers must total upwards of 2,000 while the U. S. Army air forces had upwards of 1,000 in the United Kingdom in early autumn.

The combined British-American fighter strength in the Mediterranean and the United Kingdom are probably twice the German air force total.

Aside from its beaten submarine fleet whittled Hitler has only a handful of hiding war ships in the way of a naval arm.

Behind the opposing allied strength, stands American industry, now reaching the peak of production.

This does not mean Germany is not capable of putting up a fight, but the balance sheet shows that—given a continuation of the unity and determination so dramatically affirmed at Teheran—the defeat of Hitler is as inevitable as the tides along the French coast.

Many feel if the great words of the conference once are translated into hard reality the end might come very quickly.

The War Today

By DeWitt MacKenzie

sia and the Anglo-American Allies have a great superiority in the air—a tremendous asset, especially in the case of amphibious invasion.

So the main target we're shooting at is invasion of western France. Meantime the bombing of western Europe and Germany will go on with increasing intensity. That's an essential preliminary to invasion, and of course it might crack the war-weary German morale.

A DAY NO AMERICAN WILL EVER FORGET

PEARL HARBOR DAY
December 7, 1941

Two years ago the Japanese treacherously attacked Pearl Harbor in an effort to destroy the U. S. Navy. They failed. Our Navy is now the strongest in the world and has repeatedly met and defeated units of the Japanese Navy.

Pearl Harbor will be avenged. General McArthur will go back to Bataan. Jimmy Doolittle and his pals will return to Tokio.

Do your part. Every War Bond you buy is your personal reply to Pearl Harbor.
